“Some Astrologers and enthusiasts have been predicting violent events associated with the conjunction between Mars and Uranus due to a close alignment with the Fixed Star Algol. Knowing where the outer manifestations will occur and how exactly, requires a clear and strong focus on individual charts, again of individual persons or places.” ~ Michael O'Connor

Tip of the Week:

The Sun in the third decant of Cancer hosts a dreamy, imaginative, meditative Piscean energy theme that will continue for the next 10 days or so, until the Sun enters Leo on July 22.

With Neptune currently in Pisces, where it is in honor, this theme is further emphasized. That said, Neptune is also symbolically associated with hurricanes and tidal waves.

Saturn in Pisces is also playing a supporting role to this overall theme, yet technically it is not so well aligned with the practical, earthy aspirations of Taurus. While Pisces is ethereal and inclined to formlessness, and even of disintegration, the Mars-Uranus conjunction in Taurus aspires to achieve a more practical and stable, if complex result.

This conjunction between Mars and Uranus on July 15 in Taurus, activating a 2-year cycle producing an unpredictable and rebellious alliance, shares association with both Neptune and Saturn.

The Moon in Scorpio during the conjunction on July 15, and in close alliance with Pisces adds some deep, hidden underwater influences that could be described as volcanic, and carries the torque of plate tectonic shifting magnitude!

So, while the call to fun in the Sun will be heeded by many, much is stirring that is hidden and could be deemed sudden and significantly eventful. Yes, this is a complex dynamic, as is illustrated by the above technical analysis.

Have a great week!

Keeping busy on a variety of fronts has been a prevailing theme since spring.
